

Steve Burdon
Professor, UTS – University of Technology Sydney

Steve Burdon has been associated with the University of Technology Sydney for over 25 years, and is currently Professor of Management in the Faculty of Business. He has also held a number of positions at other Australian universities, including Associate Professor and Fellow at Melbourne Business School between 2001 and 2004. Prior to this, he held a number of senior executive positions including MD Asia Pacific for British Telecom, CEO of OTC and Group MD for Telstra. Professor Burdon holds a number of non-executive board positions in public and private companies and has extensive experience advising to leading Australian organisations. His recent assignments include working for Westpac, Alcatel, Telstra, Commonwealth Bank of Australia and Clemenger. His research and teaching activities include developing Australia's first postgraduate programs in e-business management.

He has wide research experience in various areas including outsourcing, alliances, ebusiness, national ICT policy, innovation and entrepreneurship. He is currently leading an Australian Research Council funded research project on best practice outsourcing.